Collège LaSalle

Thirty years ago, the LCI Education network reached a major milestone in its history by establishing the very first campus outside Canada, in Morocco. Since 1989, the year this event took place, LaSalle College has become an educational leader in Morocco and French-speaking Africa. The school owes its reputation to an exclusive educational model whose curriculum combines training with practical experience.

In 2018, the network recorded another remarkable landmark event in Morocco as it welcomed HEM Group to the network. HEM is the number one private business school in Morocco and offers well-known programs to nearly 2,000 students each year, training the leaders of tomorrow.

With more than 40 programs in fashion design and marketing, accessory design and footwear, LCI Education network member schools have been at the forefront of fashion education for decades. State-of-the-art facilities, passionate instructors, and a curriculum focused on hands-on learning within the industry, combine for an unparalleled education in fashion.

OUR GRADUATES SHINE ON THE INTERNATIONAL SCENE

LCI Barcelona students have received awards at every edition of the Hempel Awards contest, which now opens the Mercedes-Benz China Fashion Week, taking home Gold in 2006, 2014, and 2017.

Thomas Tait, a graduate of LaSalle College in Montréal, won first place in the LVMH Young Fashion Designer Prize whose jury consisted of seven fashion directors including Marc Jacobs and Karl Lagerfeld.

Pingsi Zhou, a fashion graduate from LaSalle College in Montréal, was one of 15 winners of the prestigious Arts of Fashion Competition in San Francisco, which rewards the world's top fashion students.

UNMATCHED OPPORTUNITIES

Every year, graduating students present their designs or business concepts at graduation to over 8,000 acclaimed industry members, government officials, and media. Students from various campuses also share the stage in large-scale industry events such as Vancouver Fashion Week or the Montréal Fashion and Design Festival.

High-profile fashion insiders like Celine Dion's stylist Annie Horth, Michael Kors Canada president Debra Margles, and Fashion Television host Jeanne Beker have all participated.

BUSINESS & TECHNOLOGY

The business and technology programs at LCI Education network's member schools stand out from the competition thanks to their specialized focus on the technological aspects of modern business.

With a distinct emphasis on computer technology and IT, business students are prepared to enter the global market confidently.

STEAM

STEAM is a fundamental block in the DNA of LCI Education's approach to education. Through the application of science, technology, engineering, art and math, STEAM subjects are reinforced, understood, and retained.

GAME ON FOR PROGRAMMERS

Valued at $138-billion in 2019 and showing no signs of slowing down, the global video game industry is booming. LaSalle College in Montréal graduates are ready to meet the demand for talented and well-trained game designers and programmers.

Developed alongside studios ranked among the top in the world, the Computer Science Technology program, with an option in Video Game Programming, is tailored to the needs of the industry.

Based at LCI Education's Vancouver campus, a Bachelor of Science in Game Programming prepares graduates for an in-demand career in game development. Alumni have found work in major game productions through the school's multi-disciplinary approach to training.

In addition to its close links with industry around the globe, the college has been crowned one of the top 10 undergraduate schools for video game design by the Princeton Review 10 years in a row.

NUMBER ONE PRIVATE SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT IN MOROCCO

HEM is the top private State-recognized business school in Morocco. For 30 years, it has trained highly-qualified citizen leaders for careers in the management field, preparing them to adapt to a constantly-evolving work environment, as well as participate in socio-economic development work on the African continent and continue building an effective, fair and united society. HEM has significant influence in Morocco, Africa and beyond.

SUDOKU SCRAMBLE FOUNDER

Graduates of LaSalle College Vancouver's Game and Art Design diploma program can expect real-world success. Recent graduate Karim Spencer joined the team at 81 Monkeys, where he was responsible for the creation of Sudoku Scramble, a world-renowned number placement puzzle game.

CISCO NETWORKING ACADEMY NOMINEE

Andrew Golden, IT lecturer at LaSalle College in Montréal, has received the prestigious title of Expert Level Instructor from the Cisco Networking Academy for his high-quality teaching, his students' performance and the professional opportunities he has developed. This sought-after title is given to the best 10% of 20,000 teachers who are part of the large Cisco community, which is present in 170 countries and educates more than a million students each year.

DIGITAL ARTS

LCI Education member's Digital Arts programs are taught with the latest technology in an advanced learning environment that enables students to produce cutting-edge work in film, television, and visual art production.

The rich, hands-on learning environment has helped generations of graduates move into successful careers as Digital Arts professionals in burgeoning industries around the world.

ALUMNI WITH A STARRING ROLE

Over the years, LaSalle College in Montréal and Lasalle College Vancouver alumni have contributed to many successful Hollywood films including:

- > Deadpool 1 & 2
- > The Avengers: Infinity War
- > The Hunger Games
- > Guardians of the Galaxy
- > Star Wars: The Force Awakens
- > Jungle Book

GRADUATES LEVEL UP

The global video game industry is booming. LCI Education network campus's specialized Video Game programs prepare students for work at the top of the industry. LaSalle College in Montréal and Vancouver students and graduates have worked on internationally renowned titles including:

- > Batman: Arkham Origins
- > Deus Ex: Human Revolution
- > Injustice: Gods Among Us
- > The Sims 3
- > Assassin's Creed
- > Mortal Kombat X
- > Tomb Raider

GRAPHIC DESIGN AWARD

LaSalle College Vancouver Graphic Design alumna Jessica Mena won the RGD 2017 Student Award in the Haft2 Award for Use of Colour category competing with 640 projects.

INTERIOR DESIGN & ARCHITECTURE

More than ever before, technology is facilitating new possibilities for interior design and architecture, allowing space to be conceptualized and modelled in new and exciting ways.

Students are at the forefront of this trend, with access to the latest technology and software, enabling them to create sophisticated interiors.

INSPIRING TALK

International textile and interior designer Denise Webb recently gave a memorable presentation at LCI Bogotá, providing students with inspiring and fascinating insight into industry developments and innovations.

BROADEN THEIR HORIZONS

A group of students at LaSalle College in Jakarta had the privilege of visiting the Red Dot Design Museum, the National Design Centre, and the Maison and Objet Asia exhibition shows during their trip to Singapore Design Week.

LCI Monterrey students had the chance to fly to San Francisco to visit galleries, design offices and admire the works of renowned architects Frank Lloyd Wright, Pier Luigi Nervi, Renzo Piano, Herzog De Meuron, among others.

MAJOR DESIGN EVENT

The first edition of the Bogota Design Festival took place at the LCI Bogotá campus. Attended by 4,500 people, the festival welcomed several prestigious guests and magazines such as Axxis, Habitar, Proyectodiseño, and Portafolio.

GIVING BACK

LCI Education Foundation

© El Muroy Fotografías (Archivo de la Fundación Pies Descalzos)

Sixty years of delivering education to students through its campuses around the world has made LCI Education committed to solving the pressing global issue of ensuring access to education for all.

The LCI Education Foundation, a philanthropic organization committed to focusing on children's literacy and causes related to school retention, is a direct response to this effort.

To address the issue of education access, LCI Education Foundation joined the Institución Educativa Fundación Pies Descalzos El Bosque project, which is supported by the Colombian Ministry of Education and directed by the Pies Descalzos Foundation in partnership with the Obra Social La Caixa and the FC Barcelona Foundation. The partnership brings an investment of $4.5-million USD for the construction of a primary school and an early childhood centre in a disadvantaged area of Barranquilla.
