Special Russian Language CoursesThe Cathedral of the Resurrection*

White Nights is the period of time when the centre of the Sun goes down beyond the horizon at midnight for about 7 degrees. St. Petersburg is the place where you can observe this phenomenon within more than 50 days. It begins on the 25th/26th of May and ends on the 16th/17th of July. People from all over the world come to our city to watch this spectacular season of the year. The White Nights of St.Petersburg are famous in all parts of the world and attract attention of not only tourists, but also the citizens of St. Petersburg. This is the time when the city changes its image, it becomes more romantic as this is the best time for spending nights walking around. The white night falls down invisibly as the slightest shadow. This is the phenomenon of St.Petersburg. During the White Nights, when the Sun goes down beyond the horizon, its beams are still lightening the city. This is the only place in the world where the period of time during the year is the symbol of the city. Wonderful landscapes in the dim light of the White Nights makes the city look really superb. And when you see the bridges rise their powerful wings over the Neva framed by the marvelous embankments, parks and palaces, you'll not be indifferent, you'll be eager to come here again and again.

*Nor may the darkness mount, to smother The golden cloudland of the light,
For soon one dawn succeeds another With barely half-an-hour of night.*

A. Pushkin “The Bronze Horseman”

Technically speaking the so-called "White Nights" are not unique to St Petersburg, but only here have the northern nights received such a poetic acclaim. What could be more romantic than walking along rivers and canals when night is as bright as early evening? It is the world's only metropolis where such a phenomenon takes place every summer. Every year there are days when the downtown St Petersburg is full of people, even at night. It is a great time for those in love...

For High School graduates who usually get their diplomas about June 21-22. From late May to early July nights are bright in St Petersburg, but the real White Nights normally last from June 11 to July 2. The nature of the White Nights (Beliye Nochi) can be explained by the geographical location of St. Petersburg. It is the world's most northern city with a population over 1 million. St Petersburg is located at 59 degrees 57' North (roughly on the same latitude as Oslo, Norway, the southern tip of Greenland and Seward, Alaska). Due to such a high latitude the sun does not go under the horizon deep enough for the sky to get dark. The dusk meets the dawn and it is so bright that in summer they do not turn street lighting on.
